

Harry's Story of Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

One Mans Quest To Understand CFS

Harry'sCaseStudy:A4:ENGLISH:V1

Harry's Condition

Harry Massey suffered from Chronic Fatigue Syndrome for seven years. He went from a healthy rock climbing 18 year old to spending years feeling like he was under an all-encompassing dark cloud. Despite trying conventional medicine and complementary therapies, nothing worked and he grew progressively worse.

Harry resolved to carry on and through sheer will power he continued with the sport he loved most, rock climbing. That was until, on Lake Annecy, he was physically unable to leave his tent for a week and had to survive on just the contents of his cool box – a frightening experience for anyone.

Having recently started an MBA, Harry found that the energy and focus to study was the most difficult struggle he had ever put himself through. Ultimately all he could do was stay in his house near the university.

Journey Back To Health

Harry embarked on a journey of exploration, going down one avenue after another. His shelves expanded to include scores of books about nutrition, herbal medicine, Hulda, fasting, diets, juicing, kombucha tea, ozone therapy, chelation, energetic medicine, psychotherapy, hypnotism, I Ching, raw food and more. Harry's strong will power is reflected by his tenacity despite his condition.

Having tried conventional medical options as well as alternative therapies Harry's symptoms continued.

Energetic Medicine

When Harry came across energetic medicine it was not something he readily believed in, having come from a logical and conservative background. However, by this time he was willing to give anything a try. The deeper he got into investigating these "energy technologies" the more he felt there was sufficient evidence to accept that they worked to some degree.

As part of his investigation he met Peter Fraser, with whom he later co-authored "Decoding The Human Body-Field", and someone who had experienced the debilitating effects of CFS for 13 years.

Later Harry and Peter were to work together to turn his biophysical theory of the Human Body-Field into an overall health system.

Peter's system of testing showed that bioenergetically Harry's system was compromised by environmental toxins. His immunity was deteriorated in specific energy "compartments" (known as Energetic Integrators) which are pathways in the body that regulate information at the level of quantum electrodynamics and that direct physiological processes. This reduced immunity led to a proliferation of viruses, especially the Bunya and Flavi viruses, both thought by some to be related to ME/CFS. Radiation, organochlorides and phosphates had caused many pleomorphic organisms to be formed and the body to be in a constant battle with them, which results in constant feelings of fatigue, low grade fever and even depression.

As part of his recovery, Harry took a range of liquid solutions that contain trace minerals extracted from plants and imprinted with

Peter Fraser & Harry Massey
"Decoding The Human Body-Field" book signing

electrodynamic information. These are now known as NES Health Infoceuticals.

Having worked through Peter's protocol, taking different Infoceuticals, Harry noticed improvements in his health and went from living a pretty hopeless existence to not only having regained his health but becoming more energetic, intelligent and emotionally balanced.

Since recovering his health Harry has worked with Peter so that others may benefit from the NES Health System, by preventing the loss of health and regaining well-being.

Subsequently Harry has turned Peter's theory into a practical clinical system which is used by healthcare professionals around the world.

NES Health

NES Health Limited was founded by Peter and Harry to develop and make available the system to practitioners around the world. NES Health and its bioenergetic scanning software are at the forefront of the bio-informational and bioenergetics approach to natural health therapy. The NES System is a sophisticated decision support software system designed for use by conventional, alternative, complementary and integrative healthcare professionals. In only seconds, ProVision scans a client's Body-Field, determining distortions and blockages that correlate bioenergetically to the physical body. It is used along with NES Infoceuticals and the NES miHealth device.

The NES miHealth device is an exciting breakthrough in the world of optimum health and wellbeing. It uses a range of software applications and functions, to activate the body's self-healing capabilities. It uses Bio-electric stimulation and magnetic fields to deliver the information used by the body to return to a natural state from which all healing begins.

If you are interested in learning more about NES Health and the benefits of informational healthcare, please visit our website at www.neshealth.com